

May 9, 2016

Victory Day

Hailing from present-day Ukraine and having served seven years in the Russian military, 89-year-old Roosevelt Care Center at Old Bridge resident, Lev Kaganovich, annually observes his homeland's national holiday, Victory Day, on May 9. The day commemorates Nazi German's fall to the Soviet Union in 1945, during World War II. In Russia, television networks are swarming with World War II-inspired films, the youth honor their homeland's veterans and festivities close with a military parade in Moscow's Red Square.

